MRS. K. H. CROMWELL

Mrs. Catherine Hoover Cromwell, of South Juliana Street, died one fifteen, Tuesday morning following a surgical operation in Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia. Her three daughters were at her bedside when she passed away.

Mrs. Cromwell was born in Woodbury, Pa., September 26, 1865 and was the youngest child of Rudolph and Catherine Hoover, both deceased. January 27, 1886 she was married to William F. Cromwell and has resided in Bedford ever since.

Mrs. Cromwell is survived by three children, of her own, Harry R. Cromwell, Margaret Katherine and Helen H. Cromwell, and by two of her husband's children by a former marriage, Mrs. Julian G. Hearne, of Wheeling, W. Va., and William R. Cromwell, of Elkins, W. Va. Two brothers, Elias Hoover of Chicago and George Hoover of Woodbury. Three sisters, Mrs. William Hartman of Johnstown, Mrs. Melinda Ake, and Mrs. Belle Coble of Altoona.

Mrs. Cromwell buried her husband November, 1916, less than a year ago, and has not been in the best of health since that time. Her family and many friends had every hope for her good health and recovery, when she left for Philadelphia, and it was a severe shock to the whole community, when the news of her passing to the Great Beyond, reached Bedford on Tuesday. She was one of the cheerful, lovable people so much needed in this world of leave takings and sorrow, and her gentle personality will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Services were held in the Presbyterian church, of which she was a faithful member, Thursday afternoon at two o'clock, conducted by her pastor, Rev. K. A. Bishara and her remains rest by those of her husband, who was so recently claimed by that grim Reaper, Death.

The children have the sympathy and prayers of all in their double bereavement.

RESULTS OF THE PRIMARY ELECTION

The final and official result of the primary election gives Joseph Stayer of Bedford township the nomination on the Democratic ticket. S. F. Campbell, of New Enterprise the Republican and Washington candidate, Jacob S. Evans, Socialist candidate and James Pluke of Saxton, the Prohibition candidate.

In the associate judgeship fight S. Albert Ceesna was backed by the Penrose liquor organization of Democrats and Republicans and John S. Hershberger was backed by the Brumbaugh—anti-liquor organization of Democrats and Republicans and these two candidates will knock at your doors this fall for support. The question resolves itself into the question of whether you want to assist the demon, rum, or sail on the white sea of temperance. A great many of these so-called temperance advocates of Bedford have switched around to the assistance of the liquor crowd on the argument that there is no whiskey ring any more. The whiskey ring never closes its eyes. It sleeps with one eye open all the time and both are open 16 hours out of 24. They do not dare to miss a link because their opportunities are fading fast even with the vigilance which they keep, and the one link they have welded is the fact that a few so-called temperance advocates of Bedford have been bought to boost the cause by arguing that the whiskey ring has no existence—a back-bone-less argument and a make-shift to support an inconsistent position. The whiskey interests argue that there is no whiskey issue at this time for the government has stopped the manufacture during the war but they do not figure that the war will last for six years and that when the war is over they want a man as associate judge in their favor but they want to hood-wink the people now and they have stoned it with some former temperance advocates here but you cannot buy all. A mere position cannot control all. It takes principle with those who stick, on either side. If you are a Penrose-whiskeyite you are such on that principle and to change your position means that you have been convinced that whiskey is wrong and temperance is right or you have some pecuniary interests which are mightier in your mind than principle. So with a conversion in the opposite direction—temperance to intemperance. You are either convinced that intemperance is right and temperance is wrong or some debasing influence is brought to bear.

TREE LICENSES ARE IN DEMAND

Hundreds Are Being Taken Out at the State Department of Agriculture

EXPECT INCREASED SALES

War Conditions Shut Off Importation of Many Varieties From Foreign Countries, to the Benefit of the American Nurseries.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Licenses for the sale of trees and nursery stock in Pennsylvania are being issued by the State Department of Agriculture and from reports coming it is believed that purchases of tree stock will be on an unusual scale this year. The nursery license act, which was aimed to check the complaints arising from operation of "tree sharks," and to halt sale of inferior stock, went into effect a few months ago and about 250 nurseries, most of them in the vicinity of Philadelphia and located largely in Chester, Delaware, Montgomery and other counties, were licensed. All salesmen must also be licensed and establishments in this and other States have been taking out licenses. Some of the New York nursery establishments have been getting licenses for over one hundred men at a time. All of the applications indicate big expansion of the fruit tree business.

The war conditions have practically checked the importation of nursery, shrubbery and floral stock from Europe. Last year some shipments were handled from Holland, Belgium and France, whence come most of the stock, but they have almost ceased. Japanese stock has come in, but nothing like the quantity which was formerly imported into Pennsylvania from Europe.

Issue Index Editions.
Arrangements being made at the State Legislative Reference Bureau to issue this winter indexed editions of the third class city and borough codes. This work was authorized by the last Legislature and will be the most extensive indexed editions of municipal law ever issued in the State.

Governor Returns From Vacation.
Gov. Brumbaugh returned to the State Capitol after his vacation in Maine. The governor was here Friday night to attend Gen. Stewart's funeral but left the next day. He had conferences with several state officials. No announcements of appointments were made. No determination has been reached in the matter of taking the vote of soldiers in November.

Frost Damage Heavy.
Reports coming to the State Department of Agriculture indicate that the damage done by the frosts last week to beans, tomatoes, buckwheat and corn was even more extensive in northern counties than estimated. In some of the central counties the loss to tomatoes was heavy.

Big Demand for Men.
Director Lightner of the State's Employment Bureau received one of the largest requests for men on any day since the bureau was established. There are wanted 100 laborers—fifty carpenters and other men for construction of 200 houses, mine buildings, water and sewer systems and street improvements at several places in Western Pennsylvania. Laborers are offered thirty-two and one-half cents per hour, carpenters sixty-five to seventy-one cents per hour and one-half time for all overtime.

Books Sent Soldiers.
The first shipment of books for the camp library of the Pennsylvania troops at Augusta, Ga., one of those to be established by the American Library Association in conjunction with the War Department, Red Cross and other organizations, was made from Harrisburg Public Library, the headquarters for Southern Pennsylvania counties. Five hundred books were sent to Camp Hancock, and as many more will be sent.

Faces Labor Shortage.
Secretary of Labor continues to be worried by reports which the State Department of Labor is receiving. Last month it placed 2,783 men and women, a number higher than usual, in a number of requests from employers up to September 1, the number placed 1,833 workers on farms, a number of whom had been given vacations from factories for this purpose.

Invoking State Meat Law.
The State Livestock Sanitary Board have been rigidly invoking the law in communities where meat has been complained of and numerous prosecutions have been obtained. Through activity of agents of the State Department of Agriculture unscrupulous meat dealers who have been curing and slaughtering diseased cattle and selling the meat have been secured in several counties under meat hygiene act of 1915 and large fines have been imposed on several stores.

TAMMANY CANDIDATE FOR N. Y. MAYORALTY

JUDGE JOHN F. HYLAN.

RELIEF FOR COAL USERS

Administration Will Take Care of the Small Consumer.

Small consumers of coal will be cared for under plans being made by the fuel controller, and dealers who have contracted for coal at prices in excess of those fixed by the president must suffer the consequent loss, according to a statement made by Dr. Harry Garfield, the fuel administrator.

Distribution of coal as well as prices will be regulated in the interest of the small consumer by the fuel administration through the state administrators and local committees and a system of licensing for retail dealers will be adopted.

Industry will be placed on a strictly war basis, the demands of industrial plants being met in the proportion that their products serve the common cause. At the same time every effort will be made to encourage production. In describing the plans for grappling with the fuel situation, Dr. Garfield said the first purpose was to insure a maximum production of coal. With this purpose in view, operators who are able to show the prices fixed by the president are too low to enable them to earn a reasonable profit will have their complaints investigated.

In case their contentions are sustained recommendation will at once be made for an increase of prices. Distribution will be regulated through the powers over transportation priority granted to Judge Robert S. Lovett by the president, through the production administrative board, the shipping board, the war and navy departments, and the local coal committees.

These latter bodies will be appointed by the state coal administrators and will be directly responsible only to such officers. While all the detailed machinery of their appointment has not yet been completed, it is probable they will be authorized for every county and city in the country, probably including towns with a population of 2,500 inhabitants.

ALIEN DRAFTING PROPOSED

Senate Passes Joint Resolution.
Would Affect 1,000,000 Persons.
Drafting of all aliens in the United States except Germans, others exempt by treaty, and those of countries allied with Germany, who have lived in this country one year, is proposed in a joint resolution passed by the Senate and sent to the house. It is estimated that more than 1,000,000 aliens would be affected.

Under the resolution by Senator G. E. Chamberlain, Democrat, of Oregon, chairman of the senate military affairs committee, subjects of the allies or neutral claiming treaty exemption, would be allowed to leave the country within ninety days.

In equalities of the operation of the draft law because of exemption of large proportions of aliens in many districts were cited by Senator Chamberlain to show the need for his resolution.

Amendments adopted would permit the use of aliens of Germany in this country for other than military purposes, would provide that, in future drafts, credit shall be given for the excessive proportion in the recent draft due to exemptions.

NINE SUBMARINES ARE KNOCKED OUT BY ENGLISH

Stories of Some Recent Successes Given to Public—One Battle Between Two Submarines.

Stories of some recent successes of the British navy against German submarines were given to the English public in a series of brief descriptions of eighteen encounters, in which eight and possibly nine, U-boats were accounted for.

These eight sea battle pictures were selected so as to cover practically the whole ground of anti-submarine activities.

In one case there was a battle between an auxiliary cruiser and a submarine; in another an engagement between a seaplane and a submarine, then a battle between two submarines, in which the British submarine captain proved himself the better man and finally two tales of successes of armed merchantmen against the enemy.

TEETH AS A FACTOR IN GENERAL HEALTH

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene
by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D. LL. D.
Commissioner of Health

Good teeth are necessary for health. What adds more to the beauty of the human face than a mouth full of fine teeth?

The first teeth need great care. First, the mother should see that the mouth is not overcrowded so that its form may be maintained for the second teeth when they come.

The baby teeth are softer than those that come after and therefore acids must be scrupulously avoided, particularly in mouth washes, as they will destroy these important teeth which should be kept in the mouth as long as they are in good condition.

Your doctor or dentist should be able to tell you about the acidity of the tooth preparations that are on the market.

It is always a pleasure to learn how to do things for one's self; it makes you self reliant and at the same time stimulates you to seek further knowledge.

If you suspect your tooth preparation of being acid you can buy a few cents worth of litmus paper from your druggist, and by dipping a very small piece of this into your mixture a reddish tinge will appear on the paper if there is any acid present. If acid forbid the use of the preparation. If a tooth powder is used it should be well shaken up with water before making the acid test.

Plain chalk with a soft brush or rag will do well to cleanse the teeth of children both night and morning. The mouth should be well rinsed with water after each meal, and just before retiring it is well for both adult and child to rinse the mouth with a strong solution of baking soda. This destroys the acidity that might have been generated in the mouth from foodstuffs.

The teeth and gums should not be abused. Sound and healthy gums are necessary to maintain the health of the teeth.

The teeth represent live parts of the body and must be guarded against abuse—the same as we all better appreciate the eye has to be protected. I guess no one will doubt the life of a tooth when suffering from a bad toothache.

As the general health depends so much upon the health of the teeth and mouth we must all realize that the services of the doctor of dental surgery are as important or almost as important as the services of the doctor of medicine.

What Carrying Your Own Bundles Will Mean

A writer in the October Woman's Home Companion says:

"The Government is asking, too, through the Woman's Committee, that we effect at once a reform of our retail shop deliveries. It has been proved beyond question that we could release fully one hundred thousand men and millions of dollars' worth of equipment if we could reform the wasteful delivery system. Women must be taught the necessity of planning fully what they need for the day, and of making one order covering that day. The delivery of groceries in this country costs fully seventy-five million dollars a year. By a scientific system this great sum could be cut easily fifty per cent; but this cannot be effected without the cooperation of women. Their slogan ought to be, 'Order once a day, carry every package you can, and do it for your country's sake'."

This readjustment of our life until it is on a thoroughly scientific basis must go forward through the war. It will be one of the ways in which women will carry out what will be, after all, their greatest service, and that is in keeping the communities in a wholesome state. Every institution, commercial, educational, social, moral, must be kept alive and as nearly as possible up to par."

DEMOCRACY

The discussion of democracy throughout the world will bring a partisan advantage to the democratic party. On the continent of Europe the word "Republican" has been used more than the word democrat, and for this reason the republican party has gained more than the democratic party from immigration. But now democracy is the popular word—democracy is to be made SAFE.

Monarchies are hastening to put emphasis on their democratic features. Even in the United States aristocrats are praising democracy—men who in the past have spoken contemptuously of the word and of what it stands for. Democracy grows stronger, and who knows but that this growth in democratic sentiment may convert other European monarchies into republics.

Some day, democracy will prevail everywhere—hail the day!

You might as well have the use of that building you are planning—there is nothing to be gained by waiting. There is no prospect of prices going down for some time after the war is over. Go ahead and let your contracts.

When it comes to the roof you can make a real saving, and get a better roof by specifying

Certain-teed Roofing

CERTAIN-TEED is not cheaper because the quality is lower, but because it is a less expensive roofing to manufacture. It is better, not only because it is cheaper, but also because it is light weight, weather-tight, clean, sanitary, fire-retardant and costs practically nothing to maintain.

It is now recognized as the preferable type of roofing for office buildings, factories, hotels, stores, warehouses, garages, farm buildings etc., where durability is necessary.

CERTAIN-TEED is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to thickness (1, 2 or 3 ply).

There are many roll roofings on the market, but only one CERTAIN-TEED. It pays to get the best. It costs no more to lay a CERTAIN-TEED roof than it does to lay a poor roof, but there is a vast difference in the wear. You can't tell the quality of a roofing by looks or feel. Your only safety is the label. Be sure that it is CERTAIN-TEED—then you are certain of quality and guaranteed satisfaction.

Certain-teed Slate-Surfaced Asphalt Shingles are supplanting wood and slate shingles for residences. They cost less, are just as good looking, wear better, won't fall off, buckle or split. They are fire-retardant, and do not have to be painted or stained.

Certain-teed Paints and Varnishes are the best quality paint materials, ground and mixed with mechanical accuracy. Made for all uses and in all colors. With paint, as with roofing, the name CERTAIN-TEED is a guarantee of quality and satisfaction.

POINT OF VIEW

By EARL REED SILVERS.

For three years Jim Higgins and Mary Foster had lived on opposite sides of California street. Occasionally Jim had seen Mary make her leisurely way down the high front porch and depart with tossing head for "The Avenue." Mary appeared to him to be rather stuck up; she had a way of carrying her head as if she were afraid it might fall off her rather thin neck if she inclined it the least bit forward, and once or twice Jim had found those rather large blue eyes of hers looking straight through him, as if he had been nothing more than a piece of wood, leaning against the fence post. Looking at Mary from the viewpoint of a stranger, Jim decided that she was just the kind of a girl he didn't want to know.

Jim was twenty-four years old, and he made $24 a week, and more than one blooming maiden had looked at him with rather covetous eyes. But Jim considered himself girl-proof.

Yet on the evening of the annual outing of the Republican club Jim was destined to meet his fate. The day had passed along rather uneventfully; he had managed to secure a good seat on the trip to the island, and having once reached the boat landing he had hastened to the beach and had spent the entire day in a bathing suit. But when the big excursion boat started on its return trip Jim began to feel the stirrings of vain masings.

A big silver moon hung over the water, a faint breeze rippled through the waving hair of three girls sitting near him, and from the shadows came the sound of soft voices. For a time Jim sat in the bow of the boat with his bachelor friends and tried to persuade himself that his pipe was all that he needed to make the evening a perfect one. But his honest heart told him that he was deceiving himself, that what he wanted was a girl with laughing eyes and a jest or two on her lips. He arose restlessly and started to walk toward the stern. In every conceivable nook he could glimpse dark figures, sitting surprisingly close and making surprisingly little noise. They awoke in Jim vague memories of other nights when he, too, had sat in the shadows.

But suddenly, from a little nook at the end of one of the small passageways, came the sound of a sob. Jim stood still and listened. It came again, a girl's sob, expressing misery such as only youth can know. Jim turned and made his way into the shadows, finding in the very farthest corner of the niche the huddled figure of a girl. There was something vaguely familiar about her, and Jim hesitated a moment before addressing her. But another stifled sob caused him to touch her lightly on the shoulder. "Is there anything I can do?" he asked.

The girl raised her head and turned a tear-stained face toward him. And then Jim received a shock. It was Mary Foster. Gone was the proud toss of her head, gone the supercilious stare of her big blue eyes. She looked very much like a helpless child, and Jim's heart went out to her.

"I'm Jim Higgins," he announced. "Ain't there something I can do?"

Mary's eyes opened just a little wider.

"Are you the boy across the street?" she asked.

Jim's heart leaped just a bit at her words. He had had no idea that she knew him from Adam.

"Yes," he said, "I live across the street. Now tell me what's the matter?"

The girl half turned on the straight-backed chair and wiped her eyes. "Nothing very much," she answered.

"I came to the outing with Jerry Lyons and he wanted me to come here and talk with him, and I wouldn't, and so he went away."

"And you want me to get him again?"

A hint of the Mary Foster of old was manifested in the girl's sudden change of manner.

"No, I wouldn't have him back for a hundred dollars," she exclaimed. "I never want to see him again."

"Then how are you going to get some?"

Mary looked at Jim helplessly. "I don't know."

Jim exercised his prerogative as one of the stronger sex. "I know how you're going to get home," he announced. "I'm going to take you."

Mary's hand grasped his arm impulsively. "Oh, do you mind?"

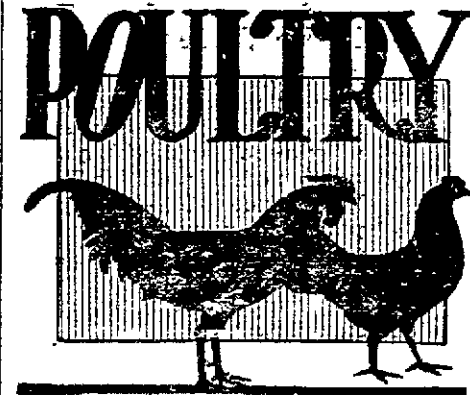

"I should say I didn't mind." Jim's whole body thrilled at that trusting clasp of Mary's hand. "Supposing we take a walk."

The girl hesitated. "My eyes are wet and I wouldn't want people to see me," she answered. "Would you mind just sitting here?"

Jim assured her earnestly that he wouldn't mind at all, and so the girl moved over slightly and they both sat on the chair that was made only for one. One silver moonbeam rested fairly on Mary's brown hair. Jim's fingers touched it lingeringly. There was something about Mary which was different from any girl he had ever known.

He liked the blue of her eyes and the proud way she carried her head. "Mary," he said softly, "you're one of the prettiest girls I've ever seen."

Which all goes to show that a good deal in life depends upon one's point of view.

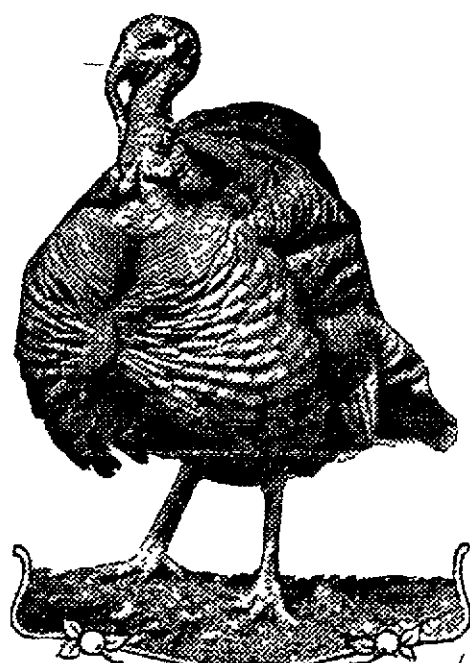

RAISING TURKEYS ON RANCH

Now Found Only in Unsettled Foothill Regions of California and Some Western States.

Turkey ranching is a new industry born of the decreasing production of turkeys on farms, according to an article in the recently published 1916 Yearbook of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Exclusive turkey ranching is now found practically only in the unsettled foothill regions of California and Fine Type of Bronze Turkey.

In certain sections of Arizona and other Western states. In these regions a few persons are engaged in raising a thousand or more turkeys a season. The establishments are located where the range is unlimited and the natural food of the turkey, such as grasshoppers and other insects, green vegetation, and the seeds of various weeds and grasses, is abundant. Advantage also is taken on these ranches of the turkey's relish for acorns, and where these are plentiful but little grain need be used for fattening in the fall.

The large flocks of turkeys are managed much like herds of sheep, being taken out to the range early in the morning, and brought home to roost at night. They are herded during the day by men either on foot or on horseback, and by dogs especially trained for the work.

BOTHER WITH EARLY CHICKS

Leg Weakness and Bowel Troubles Are Most Common Complaints—Two Ordinary Causes.

Many have had trouble with their early chicks. Leg weakness and bowel trouble are the most common complaints. The general causes for these troubles are overfeeding and too close confinement and the two usually go together. That which would be regarded as overfeeding in small runs would not be overfeeding where the chicks were out on the ground and permitted to run at will. Chicks confined to basement or in buildings continually, should have moist earth to scratch in and even then, should not be long confined to such runs.

The cold will not hurt them if they can return to the warm hovel at will, and they will very soon learn where to find it.

LOSS OF INCUBATOR CHICKS

Poultry Specialist Saves Lives of Many Young Fowls by Using Feather Duster in Brooder.

A poultry specialist claims to be able to reduce loss among incubator chicks by providing the brooder with feather dusters. The chicks in coming in contact with the dusters imagine that they are being brooded by a hen and consequently do not become homesick and despondent over the fact that they have no mother to love them.

GOOD DUST BATH FOR FOWLS

Necessary in Every Poultry House That Hens May Get Rid of Vermin—Fine Dust Is Best.

In every poultry house there should be a dust bath where the hens may get rid of lice.

Poultry lice breed through pores in their sides and fine dust fills these pores and suffocates the vermin. Road dust, hard coal ashes or dry dust of any kind will accomplish the purpose.

Salt for Breeding Stock.

A little salt in the dry mash for the breeding stock and in the feed for newly hatched chicks will largely prevent the vice of toe-picking and cannibalism.

Eggs for Hen's Board.

Forty eggs laid by a hen between November 1st and March 1st amply pays for her year's feed. It takes from 60 to 80 to go to a pound, etc.

FRIDAY MORNING, SEPT. 28, 1917.

The war is every man's business, and the sacred obligation resting upon him as a citizen is to do his part to the best of his physical and financial ability. This is a definition of patriotism that can not be successfully attacked. The man who withholds his service as a soldier when the giving of them involves no grave sacrifice and imposes no grave burdens upon dependents is no more of a slacker, however, than the man with money who refuses to employ it in the advantage of the country.

It is frankly admitted by some railroad men that since the government war board has taken charge of the transportation facilities of the country, need no longer exists for the 15 per cent advance the railroads recently asked and over the refusal of which many corporate tears were shed. It will instantly suggest itself to thinking men that if government operation has proved to be such a good thing it would be as equal good if the government owned and operated the roads all the time.

How Woolworth Got His Great Idea

The story of Frank Woolworth, the owner of the five and ten cent stores throughout the country, is in the October American Magazine and the writer of the article says:

"Outwardly he was a quiet-mannered young man of unemotional habits, dull and without prospects. Inwardly he was restless, alert, eager, but nearly hopeless.

"One evening, at closing time, his employer cast a glance of dissatisfaction over some small remnants of calico and cashmere, and frowned at a lot of unsalable goods that had encumbered his shelves since the opening of the store.

"Better gather these things together on a table and sell them for what you can get," said W. H. Moore.

"His heavy-footed, grave-faced salesman collected the articles, constructed a sign on cardboard and tacked it upon a stick: 'Anything on this counter, five cents.' In two days the encumbers of space were gone.

"The experience of the magical disappearance of the space encumbers might have meant nothing to some small-town clerks, or large-town ones for that matter. But young Frank Woolworth had formed the habit of cataloguing his experiences and labeling them. Everything meant something to him.

"He told his employers that if a table full of odds and ends could be sold by the magic of a sign of 'Five cents,' a store full of them would sell. He proposed to open a store. True, he had no money, but they could remedy that lack. They could lend him the amount of capital he needed. They wouldn't. His father agreed to endorse his note."

Thanks

The vote that I received at the primary election on last Wednesday fills me with new inspiration. It makes me feel that the years I have spent in this dear old county have not ALL been spent in vain, and I want to express to all of my friends my heart felt thanks for the most splendid endorsement you have given me for Associate Judge.

The Lapps, who have been settled for centuries past in the northern parts of the Scandinavian peninsula and Russia, were originally nomads subsisting on their reindeer herds, but they are now settling among the inhabitants of the country and becoming "solid citizens."

WOODBURY

* * * * *
On last Friday night Dr. I. P. Patch of Altoona, delivered a lecture in the High School Auditorium at this place on "The Philosophy of Laughter."

The lecture was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed and if those who heard it carry on in their lives the "Gospel of Sunshine" a sset forth by the lecturer, this world will be a brighter place in which to live.

Dr. Patch said in part, Laughter is a gift, bearing the Divine stamp, and like all such gifts its Nature is pure and joyous, like the salt of life-keeping it sweet; like flowers making it beautiful, and like Yeast-stirring it within. A laugh not only makes its owner welcome in any society, but philosophy, which traces effects to their causes, shows that laughter has a good effect on the body, the lungs being expanded, the diaphragm contracted and the passage from the pharynx to the trachea partially closed.

It accelerates the circulation, drains off the blood from the congested veins and sets the currents of life moving more swiftly.

Its expressions are facial, the mouth corners turn up and the whole face takes on a pleased expression, corners on the market; on wheat, on corn, are far reaching and important, but not so full of influence as these same mouth corners which reveal the dark side and the sunny side of life.

There are laughs and laughs; a giggle is not a laugh, but a counterfeit of the genuine article, and should not be indulged in.

The lecture was entertaining as well as intellectual, the philosophy being sugar-coated with genuine humor and fun, and enriched by poems of the lecturer's own composition.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Blackburn and son, Mr. and Mrs. Mann and son, Charles of New Paris, spent Sunday with Geo. Stonerook and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Replegle and N. V. Davis and wife of Altoona, were recent guests of Frank Bolger and family.

Miss Gertrude Stayer returned home on Sunday after spending the past week with her friend, Miss Effie Grace of Six Mile Run.

J. N. Hoffman, wife and son Joseph of Pittsburgh, spent several days recently with the former's father, H. B. Hoffman.

Blain Butler and wife of Roaring Springs were pleasant callers at Mrs. Savina Lecones on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. H. J. Randal, left on Friday for Hummelstown, where she will spend the winter with her husband, who is employed there.

Miss Fannie Bolger of Three Spring spent Sunday with her parents Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bolger.

Improving One's Good Points.

The art of posing lies in one's ability to acquire it without appearing affected. To make those with whom one comes in contact weary with unnecessary affectation is of course a thing to be deplored. If the individual, however, realizes the importance of helping nature's endowments, she will appear perfectly natural in always striving to look her very best. Learn to know your own good points and take the trouble to cultivate them. You will find that it will pay—Exchange.

Hadn't Kissed the Kittens.

Jean, aged three, was visiting at her grandfather's farm. She tired of the new kittens and puppies and went in search of her mother. When that lady was found she held up her face for the usual kiss. "I'd kiss you if I thought you hadn't been kissing those kittens," mother said. "I haven't," Jean said. And when she had the kiss she smiled adorably and said: "But I've been kissing those little puppies."
